

ColecoVision & ADAM Cartridges

by Jim Notini/N.I.A.D. - Version 2.07 - 02/04/2012

Microsoft Excel version maintained by AtariAge's Ikrananka
Contributors: AtariAge members, Ikrananka, Jeff31 and Crapahute

- In the "Checkbox" fields for games: C = cartridge, B = box, M = manual and O = overlay.
- In the "Checkbox" fields for controllers: C = controller, B = box, M = manual and O = overlay
- In the "Rarity" field: LO = loose cartridge only and CB = Complete in Box (box, manual and cartridge). You can find rarity lists on www.colecovisionzone.com, www.digitalpress.com and www.rarityguide.com to compare as well.
- In the "CONTR." field: H = Hand Controller, S = Super Action Controller, R = Roller Controller, D = Exp. Mod. #2 Driving Module, P = Sketch Master Sketch Pad and T = Track & Field Controller. Also, the Roller Controller can be used in "Joystick" mode with all games to varying degrees of success... the best games to play this way are identified below.

 = highlighted cells are those with changes from last version.

- NOTE #1: FaceMaker was also released in a box titled "Make-A-Face" but the cartridge label and manual read "FaceMaker".
- NOTE #2: Epyx's Pitstop was released with two different cartridge shells. The first was similar to Imagic's cart shell with a tapered front at the top that forms a handle/hand grip and the label reads " for Coleco ". The second cart shell is similar to Coleco's and reads " for ColecoVision & ADAM". To make matters more confusing some of these Coleco-ish style shells also read " for Coleco ". The games Gateway to Apshai and Jumpman Jr. were only released in Coleco-ish style cart shells.
- NOTE #3: Imagic labels used two different color variations (white and black backgrounds) as well as black/white labels which did not include any color.
- NOTE #4: Most 3rd Party U.S. releases are the same in Canada and the rest of the World.
- NOTE #5: Caterpillar S.O.S. was a specially designed game for C.A.T. Heavy Equipment Dealerships and only one cartridge is known to exist and no rom dump exists.
- NOTE #6: Slither (Roller Controller), Turbo (Exp. Mod. #2 Driving Controller) and Super Action Baseball (Super Action Controllers) were not supplied with a game box. However, a box for Slither and Turbo have been produced by Homebrewers. Also, Coleco did produce a box for Donkey Kong and it is one of, if not, the rarest boxes to find especially in good shape.
- NOTE #7: Sunrise Software titles were released with gold cart labels with the exception of Mountain King, which used a silver cart label. Eventually, Quest for Quintana Roo also was released with a silver cart label.

NOTE #8: Coleco made two different box variations for Mr. Do!. The first had the Arcade Cabinet on the front of the box angled to the right and the corrected version, released much later, had the cabinet angled to the left like all other Coleco releases featuring arcade cabinets on the front of the box.

NOTE #9: Original (no variations) cartridge release count = 131

NOTE #1: While most of Coleco's titles are listed above as being released by CBS Electronics, a large number (mainly the educational titles and games released in 1984) never had a CBS version manufactured... the US version was more than likely exported to foreign countries. We will continue to update CBS releases when further info becomes available. Thanks to the Coleco Box Art website for all their hard work sorting through and making available a lot of the info listed above as well as AtariAge members Ikrananka and Jeff31. There may be duplicates listed above until we can verify what cartridge label # came with what box/product #.

NOTE #2: There are 4 variations of CBS Electronics boxes:

- #1 - boxes have only one language (English, French, German, etc.) and they have large artwork
- #2 - boxes are multilingual (English, French, German, Italian, etc.) and there is a big artwork on the front and a black strip area for text on the top and bottom
- #3 - boxes are multilingual (English, German, Spanish and Italian) and the main box color is grey

Thanks to Coleco Box Art for descriptions - www.colecoboxart.com

NOTE #3: There are 9 variations of CBS Electronics labels used on CBS' cart shell:

- #1 - Label heading is "FOR USE ON PAL (U.K.) T.V. SYSTEM ONLY"
- #2 - Label heading is "DESIGNED FOR USE ON PAL (U.K.) T.V. SYSTEM"
- #3 - Label heading is "FOR USE ON PAL T.V. SYSTEM ONLY"
- #4 - Label heading is in 4 languages (English, French, German and Italian)
- #4a - Same as #4 but has "Made in Spain" as opposed to "Made in England"
- #5 - No heading on label.
- #5a - Same as #5 but has "Made in Spain" as opposed to "Made in England"
- #6 - Label heading is in French (SECAM)
- #7 - Label heading is in German
- #8 - "High Resolution Cartridge for the CBS ColecoVision Console" sticker placed over Type #6 label.

Thanks to AtariAge member Jeff31 for the following information and other help he has provided.

NOTE #4: There are 8 known region codes used for CBS Electronics releases. This code is the letter, letters or letter/number at the end of the Product #:

- A - United Kingdom
- C -
- CA -
- D - Germany
- F - France
- I - Italy ?
- R1 -
- R2 -

NOTE #5: The Bit Corp. games Strike It! and Tank Wars may never have been officially released in Europe. Cosmic Crisis, Meteoric Shower, Strike It! and Tank Wars were made for Bit Corp.'s Dina 2-in-1 System, a ColecoVision compatible system. They also worked in Bit's ILO-90 (Bit-90) Computer.

NOTE #6: Xonox released three DOUBLE-ENDER cartridges in Canada and Europe containing games released in the U.S. as single carts. All three are rare to very rare and the label on most has a blue background while a smaller quantity have a black background label.

NOTE #7: Splice made one original game, Castelo, for their ColecoVision clone called SpliceVision. All their other releases were just bootlegs of other companies games that sometimes have different names. Castelo may never have been produced and sold in cartridge form.

NOTE #8: Parker Brothers released all their titles in 2 differenet box variations, compared to the U.S. market, for the Canadian market (French/Canadian) and the European market (6 languages). All the boxes are assumed to be the 2-Piece style.

NOTE #9: The Super Action Controller overlays included with Front Line (two overlays) and Rocky - Super Action Boxing (one overlay) have different artwork/color to the US releases and include the text "CBS ColecoVision & ADAM" and "CBS ColecoVision" on them respectively.

NOTE #10: Original (no variation) cartridge release count not released in the U.S. = 6

TeleGAMES U.S./U.K. (RE)RELEASES 1986-2011

C	B	M	OH	OS	PRICE	RARITY		PRODUCT NUMBER	YEAR	TITLE	MANUFACTURER	CONTROLLER						NOTES
						LO	CB					H	S	R	D	P	T
NOTE #1: All TeleGames' initial releases had a label that was light grey with black or sometimes blue text with the Telegames logo at the bottom of the label. They later used exact replicas of the original game releases' label and then finally a white label with black text.
NOTE #2: TeleGames could not release Chuck Norris SuperKicks due to name licensing laws, therefore they changed the name to Kung-Fu SuperKicks.
NOTE #3: TeleGames bought large stocks of cartridges from Interphase, Imagic, Activision, Imagic, Xonox, Coleco, etc., but they only bought the rights to certain companies' games due to licensing laws. When their stock of original bought cartridges was exhausted, it is not known for sure if they made new cartridges using their grey label and black/blue text, copies of the original labels or other. The ones that I have seen firsthand with their label or reproduced original label are included in the list above.
NOTE #4: Amazing Bumpman is TeleGames' release of Sunrise Software's Number Bumper.
NOTE #5: Skiing is TeleGames' only original game release, programmed by Terry Grantham.
NOTE #6: Alcazar and Rock'N Bolt were never released by Activision. TeleGames bought the rights to these games and released them on cartridge with their label, green clamshell box and instructions.
NOTE #7: Boulder Dash was never released by Micro Fun. TeleGames bought the rights to it and released it on cartridge.
NOTE #8: TeleGames sold a large number of games in green plastic cases (clamshell style) with photocopied artwork and manuals. The pcb was housed in a generic cart shell and with a reproduced label from the original game.
NOTE #9: CBS Software label version of One on One Basketball has been seen, but not confirmed as an actual CBS Software release. Probably a TeleGames UK reproduction.
NOTE #10: TeleGames UK has used a blue label with white text, no graphics and generic cartridge shell on reproduction of games as well.
NOTE #10: TeleGames really threw a monkey wrench into keeping things organized!
NOTE #11: Cartridge release count = ??? (8 originals not previously released in North and South America). Meteoric Shower and Cosmic Crisis were released in Europe and some other foreign markets by Bit Corp. Strike It! and Tank Wars probably were not released by Bit Corp (only the TeleGames versions exist).

NOTE #2: These are confirmed to exist and have been dumped to a rom image file, although they may not have all been contained in a cartridge shell, but rather a loose EProm or Prom Chip.

NOTE #1: Most are confirmed to exist and have been dumped to a rom image file, although they may not have all been contained in a cartridge shell, but rather a loose EProm or Prom Chip.

NOTE #2: Super Donkey Kong and Super Donkey Kong Junior cartridges are confirmed to have existed. The cartridges were reported to be almost double the size of a standard cartridge shell. These versions were used in conjunction with a modified ColecoVision (increased memory) at the infamous unveiling of the ADAM Computer during the 1983 Consumer Electronic Show.

NOTE #3: Details of Energy Quizz are still sketchy at best. One is known to exist and gameplay wise, it may have been a hack of WizMath.

NOTE #1: A Homebrew conversion was made from the ADAM version.

NOTE #2: Possible working title for War Room.

NOTE #3: Released by TeleGames in 1986. Number Bumper renamed to Amazing Bumpman.

NOTE #4: Possible working title for Aquattack.

NOTE #5: A demo/prototype was found and dumped to a rom file.

NOTE #6: An unconfirmed prototype was found and dumped to a rom file.

NOTE #7: Working title for The Lord of the Dungeon.

NOTE #8: Released by Coleco in 1984.

NOTE #9: Title was scrapped and replaced by the released Destructor.

NOTE #10: Prototype was found and dumped to a rom file. Homebrew Scene released it on cartridge in limited quantities.

NOTE #11: A confirmed prototype was found but no rom file has been dumped.

NOTE #12: Possible working title for B.C II: Grog's Revenge.

NOTE #13: Titles were scrapped and replaced by Super Action Baseball & Football.

NOTE #14: Was released with a cart label titled Facemaker, but box read Make-A-Face.

NOTE #15: Completed titles that CAN'T be released by The Blue Sky Rangers due to licensing laws. Rom files do exist, but are closely guarded!

NOTE #16: Possible working title for It's Only Rock 'n' Roll.

NOTE #17: Never released. TeleGames sells a game called Skiing... it's not the same.

NOTE #18: Never released. A terrific Homebrew version was released by Scott Huggins.

NOTE #19: Possible working titles for The Wizard of Id's WizMath.

NOTE #20: Was scrapped by Coleco after nearing completion. Can be seen in the CV Experience magazine.

NOTE #21: A Homebrew project was started around 2003 or so, but was put on hold indefinitely. Hopefully one day it will be revisited and finished.

NOTE #22: A Homebrew project to bring this game to the ColecoVision is nearing completion and should hopefully be released in the summer of 2011.

NOTE #1: Adam's House/eColeco has been a long time mail order vendor for all things ColecoVision and ADAM Computer. In the early 90's they started to provide ColecoVision cartridges in generic cart shells with a white label and black printed text. They also partnered with CBS Software to produce cartridge versions of a number of prototype games and when stock was sold off, continued to manufacture their own versions.

NOTE #2: Walters Software Co., one of the most prolific developers of ADAM software, conversions of Super Games to Disk format and much more, acquired the distribution rights to a large number of ColecoVision games in 1992-93 from, I assume, TeleGames US. It is not known how many they eventually sold but they probably would have a white label with black text like their ADAM only cartridge releases. Also, the label would have been on the face of the cartridge shell and would not have included an END label.

NOTE #1: Some details as to whether a cartridge release was supplied with a box and printed manual are not currently available. I have done my best to get things listed correctly and verification/corrections would be welcome.

NOTE #2: A large number of the above homebrews are still available to purchase thru the developer, AtariAge, Good Deal Games, etc (Rarity 0). In the case that the carts are not available for purchase anymore, the rarity value is adjusted to R7 or more since a limited amount were produced and will increase in rarity value quickly.

NOTE #3: A large number of cartridges listed above have been released by their author as a rom image... FOR FREE! These will not be listed below in the "HOME BREW ROM IMAGE RELEASES" section, they can be found on the Web easily.

NOTE #4: Cye 1.x was released in two different variations. Cye 1.0 was released by CGE Services in 2007, had 28 levels and was a limited production edition of 50 carts. Cye 1.1 was released in 2008 and has 30 levels (9 are identical to 1.0) and is still available for purchase.

NOTE #5: Different bonus levels are included in both of the versions of Search for the Stolen Crown Jewels after one wins the game at the highest skill level.

NOTE #6: Two different versions of DacMan exist. DacmMan v1.0 was released at CGE2K and later v1.3 was released that fixed a bug in the game.

NOTE #7: CVDrum EX and CVSynth by E.Mancanics may never have been released.

NOTE #8: A number of games that were only made available as rom images (see section below) were made available as actual cartridges with professional and or generic labels by numerous people over the years. They show up for sale on Auction Sites and Forums from time to time.

NOTE #9: Homebrew Hand Controller Overlays have been produced by numerous people:

NOTE #1: A lot of the Homebrew Cart Releases have been made available as ROM images as well. The complete game, not a limited or unfinished version. Since they are listed in the "Homebrew Release" section, I will not relist them here as well.

NOTE #2: Rom images listed as WIP are work-in-progress demo releases that were made available by their author. Some where finished and released as a cartridge or a final ROM file.

NOTE #3: Multiple revisions/updates of some of the above roms were made available by their author.
